IMMIGRANT ANCESTORS

Following is a list of immigrant ancestors, with identifying biographical data, whose names appear so frequently in the preceding pages that repetition of the data in the lineage records would have been superfluous. Hence, where the following names appear in lineage records, the use of the cross-reference (qv) was adopted, referring to this particular section of the book for further information.

It should be understood, however, that this is not a complete list of the immigrant ancestors whose names are in the book. It includes only such names as appear most frequently, and omits immigrant ancestors whose names appear only occasionally in the lineage records.

PRO PATRIA

For the convenience of those who consult THE ABRIDGED COMPENDIUM OF AMERICAN GENEALOGY, a list is presented of the most active and important patriotic and hereditary societies of the country, supplemented by a statement of the objects for which they stand and the requisite qualifications for membership in each. The names of the officers of the societies (1924) are also given in order to facilitate communication with them, if desired, although it should be remembered that the officers change from year to year. It is believed that the information here given concerning these societies will be of considerable service to users of the book, and that it will prove to be one more step toward awakening and consolidating sentiment for the promotion of Americanism in the truest sense.

Doubtless all persons whose lineages appear in the preceding pages are eligible for membership in some, if not all, of these societies. The great majority are already members of one or more of them, and it is hoped that acquaintance with the principles which these societies advocate and promote will induce thousands of others to apply for membership. With the patriotic organizations of the country thus strengthened a great army will be enlisted for patriotic service, which, by sheer force of numbers will be a vast power available for effectively buttressing the established principles of Americanism against the attacks of enemies both from within and without.

That there is real need for such an army is shown by the anti-American propaganda which has been especially active since the World War. Well-organized, efficient and aggressive agencies have attempted to undermine and overthrow American institutions, if not even the government itself. While such connivances have heretofore failed, it would be futile to deny that hostile influences constantly threaten.

It is true that there is a latent patriotic spirit in America, capable, when aroused, of coping with every danger. This spirit was greatly stimulated and brought into effective action during the World War; but since the war the need for a national organization for counteracting anti-Americanism, promoting Americanism and safeguarding America for Americans, is more apparent than ever before.

Suggestions have been made from time to time for the working out of a practical plan for the promotion of Americanism in a broad and effective way. For the most part such organizations have accomplished but little, and have been short lived. The most noteworthy of recent proposals for the adoption of promising means for the promotion of Americanism on a nation-wide scale, is to create by Act of Congress a permanent commission, properly equipped for this service.

While the various patriotic societies are now fulfilling their functions admirably, each in its own way, there has been no central body to which all of them could give support. It is confidently believed, however, that a national commission could be so constituted and equipped that it would receive not only the unqualified approval of the societies but also the enthusiastic support of every patriotic American citizen.

SOCIETY OF THE CINCINNATI

Founded 1783. Objects: "The following principles shall be immutable and form the basis of the Society of the Cincinnati: An incessant attention to preserve inviolate those exalted rights and liberties of human nature, for which they have fought and bled, and without which the high rank of a rational being is a curse instead of a blessing. An unalterable determination to promote and cherish, between the respective States, that union and national honor so essentially necessary to their happiness, and the future dignity of the American Empire. To render permanent the cordial affection subsisting among the officers. This spirit will dictate brotherly kindness in all things, and particularly, extend to the most substantial acts of beneficence, according to the ability of the Society, towards those officers and their families, who unfortunately may be under the necessity of receiving it."

Officers (1923-24): Pres. gen., Winslow Warren; v.p. gen., Charles Beatty Alexander; sec. gen., John Collins Daves; treas. gen., Henry Randall Webb; asst. sec. gen., Francis Apthorp Foster; asst. treas. gen., James Wall Schureman Campbell.

Woodward, Little Rock.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX

Names in bold face type indicate the subjects of preceding records, and numbers in bold face type indicate the page upon which the record appears.

This index was compiled with the view of providing, as nearly as possible, an index of ancestors, and at the same time of furnishing the maximum amount of data in the simplest form.

Every man mentioned in the lineages in the preceding pages is listed in this index; but his wife's name has been omitted from the index because its inclusion would more than double the number of names without any appreciable advantage. It is only in rare instances that a genealogical investigator does not know the name of the father or husband of the woman whose name he is seeking, and the names of the father and husband are listed in the index when known.

However, women who are the subjects of the lineage records are listed in the index in bold face type under their maiden names or, if married, under their married names. The husbands and fathers of these women are also listed in proper alphabetical order.

The names of children of present generations have been omitted from the index for the reason that the father's name is the only name of genealogical importance in present generations. But the names of children of present generations are listed in the index, and in bold face type, when they themselves are the subjects of records, and also to show intermarriages.

The bold face type numbers following the names of immigrant ancestors in the index, refer to the pages upon which their biographical records appear (pages 965-997); other page numbers refer to lineage records.
